

Class: Deer Class

Barndale Learning Plan

“What I learn today, prepares me for tomorrow”

Term: 23/24 Summer Term

Literacy Skills

Can I use persuasive techniques to advertise?

We will continue to work towards our NCFE Entry Level Functional Skills accreditations at different levels tailored to each student. Our overarching theme of English this term is persuasive writing. We will be reviewing and analysing different adverts and campaigns to create our own on a topic or product of our choosing. We will also continue our periods of independent reading time with close adult support to promote a love of reading for leisure. We will also be continuing with exploring language through a sensory lens for our young people that are working towards accessing our NCFE Entry level curriculum through the ASDAN life skills programme.

Life Skills Challenges

Preparation for adulthood: Can I carry out independent household tasks? This half term we will be focusing on understanding of how to use household appliances safely and how to buy products for those appliances.

Humanities: Can I relay information about the history of the Olympic Games? This half term we will be continuing our History of the Olympic topic. We will be researching the various host countries, notable athletes, conflict surrounding the Olympics and well as comparing the modern Olympics to the Ancient Games and also hosting our own class 7 Olympic Games.

DT: Can I recognise different cameras and use them to take an image? This half term we will be continuing to offer Photography ran by Rachel.

Science: Can I identify five types of energy? This half term we will be focusing on Physics; specifically energy and safety. We will explore different kinds of energy and how they work when put into effect.

RE: What is a Pilgrimage? This half term we are starting a new topic for our sensory learners that explores world religions. As we also continue our Pilgrimages across different religions around the world.

ASDAN PSD/RSE

Can I keep myself safe in the home and community?

Personal social development: This year we have implemented a larger number of PSD sessions into our curriculum which has been really well received so far. In this half term, we will be focusing on keeping ourselves safe in situations regarding stranger danger, road, water and fire safety.

Do I understand the dangers of online relationships?

Relationships and sexual education: This half term we will be looking into safeguarding and the appropriate use of online personal communication.

Digital Skills

Can I efficiently put the skills I have learned into practice?

Following the NCFE Award, we will be focusing on creating and editing and the practicality of using our digital skills effectively on a daily basis. We will be also looking at keeping ourselves safe on the internet.

Numeracy & Problem Solving

Can I put my number-work into a practical setting?

We will be working towards our NCFE entry level functional skills accreditations in maths, at different levels, tailored to each student. This term we will be focusing on our practical number skills such as money and time in small, focused groups with close adult support when required. We will also be exploring shape and number through a sensory lens for our young people who are working towards accessing our NCFE entry level curriculum.

Therapeutic Input: How do I regulate?

The Speech and language therapists will continue to work with us to improve our communication. The occupational therapist within school will also be advising strategies for use to develop our fine and gross motor skills. Some of us will be supported from one of our THRIVE practitioners. We will also be providing sensory sessions for those who require additional sensory input.

Duke of Edinburgh Award

This term we are continuing our bush craft skills for our Duke of Edinburgh award for those who wish to progress onto their Silver award as we continue our volunteering and skill sections of the award. As well as continuing our physical aspect of the award in PE sessions ahead of our two day Silver expedition in July.
